Thank you for seeing Irena, age 38 yrs, for opinion and management. She is very sensitive to most medications and has a long list of symptoms for the past few years. She noticed she deteriorated after spending a lunch time with a room full of recently vaccinated women. The question of shedding was raised. She notice problems about a week later, when she suffered from aching legs, numb, pins and needles, which continues. She underwent various treatments to help her, had some lymphatic treatment then develop chest pain, which seems to have helped by Ivermectin. She was only able to take a very small amount. Also she has headaches and food sensitivities. She is concerned the chest pain may be more complex than is at the moment diagnosed from echo or MRI. Can you help her?

Past Medical History

always had an extreme sensitivity to medications dermatitis treated with bioem - probiotic bath
food sensitivities ++
Insulin resistance diagnosed 2016
severe dermatitis 2001 - no diagnosis ? cause treated steroids

Yours sincerely,
